Before raising broilers for competition, you should ask yourself one question: "Am I up to the challenge of caring for turkeys for several months?" Birds require regular care and feeding throughout their lives. Raising birds requires an extra commitment of time, patience, dedication and concern for the animals involved. Persons who cannot put forth the effort required should probably not begin the process.

Planning and preparing adequate facilities before the arrival of the birds allows birds to adapt to their new environment with a minimum amount of stress. Facilities should provide birds with ample space, plenty of ventilation, proper temperature and adequate protection from the elements and predators. While good facilities and feed which meets the nutritional needs of the bird are crucial for rapid growth, poor management or bird care can undermine all the previous efforts. Checking the birds, particularly at times of the day when the temperature is changing, and making appropriate adjustments are the only ways a proper environment can be maintained.
